IT'S ALL ABOUT LOVELY LOCATIONS HERE ARE YOUR TOP SIX TIPS FOR PICKING YOUR BAKE FOR HEROES VENUE.

1. Host at home

This is a wonderful way to run a cosy bake sale or tea party. In preparation, why not get crafty making cake toppers and bunting?

All those little finishing touches really add a special personal touch.

2. Team up

Why not ask family members and friends to get involved? Giving people little jobs to do helps share the load and gets everyone excited for your big bake sale day.

3. Think big

Have your invites built a bit of a buzz? When you're expecting a crowd, check out your local community centre, school or church hall. They're the ideal venues for bigger bake sales, just make sure they're accessible for attendees, and don't forget to consider traffic, transportation, and parking options.

4. Seek permission

It's important to get permission for your event, so if you're hosting at work or school, talk to your manager or teacher to check it doesn't clash with any other activities. Get everyone involved by asking colleagues, friends or classmates to bake or bring something along too.

5. Double check

If you're planning to host a bake sale in a public space or on private property such as a village hall, you may need to contact the local authority or landowner. To keep things simple, why not see whether there is an Armed Forces Day event in your area which you host your bake sale at?

6. Have fun!

Where ever your event is, if you're having fun people will want to join in and help support your fabulous fundraising efforts.
